21-day online introductory period to help students find their pathway to academic success

Students can try online learning for 21 days.

We understand that some students may still be hesitant about studying online and we want to ensure that they don't delay their progression because of that. We are now offering an extended introductory period to ensure our students can begin their studies with confidence and financial peace of mind as they make an important choice about their education.

From April 2020, all students that join one of our online pathway programmes in the UK or Europe will have an extended introductory period of 21 days to experience online learning with our expert teachers and get to know their classmates before they decide whether it is the right mode of study for them.

If, within 21 days, students decide not to continue with their studies online, they can select to defer their place to a future intake, or cancel their place with a full refund of their tuition fees.

Subject to Terms and Conditions.

Key information

Guaranteed progression

Even if students complete their entire programme online, they will progress to their chosen degree at their chosen university, provided they meet the entry criteria.
